

Week 5 Reflection:

One trade off I would revisit is the scope of testing. It would seem that there is a balance in reducing the scope to broadening the scope. Narrowing the scope reduces risk but will ensure safety and minimize disruption but it can miss critical vulnerabilities. The broad scope can disrupt operations and may find those more critical vulnerabilities but is more of a risk. Seems to balance the two could be an issue.